Hi Claire!

Greetings from The Festival of the Sun. The weather's great! It's sunny and warm. It lasts from 17th - 24th June. People are wearing colourful costumes and they're dancing and playing music in the streets. Mum is taking photos. I'll show you them when I get back.

See you soon!

Anna

Hi Frankie,

How are you? I saw How to Train Your Dragon with my friends at the cinema last night and I wanted to tell you about it. It's an animated adventure starring Jay Baruchel and Gerard Butler. It's about a young Viking called Hiccup. There are dragons that attack the town where he lives every night. One night, he hurts a dragon, but he can't kill it and they become friends. I really loved this film because it was very exciting. You should see it. How was your weekend?

Yours,
Yuri

Last spring, my family and I went on holiday in Egypt. The weather was warm and sunny and we were excited about seeing the Pyramids when we arrived.

We flew to Cairo from London. The next day, we took a coach to see the Pyramids. First, we visited the ancient ruins and then we decided to ride camels! We climbed up on their backs.

Everything was fine at first and I took some great photos. Suddenly, my camel walked on a sharp rock and jumped in pain. I fell off and broke my leg! Immediately, my parents started screaming and ran over to me.

I had to go to hospital and I came home a few days later with my leg in a cast. I've never felt so disappointed with a holiday!
